This inclusive and multidisciplinary collaboration will be accommodated in a series of events consist of forum discussion, research, and publication. More specifics, this conference is organized to strengthen studies on Indonesian social-political issues by inviting not only national experts but also those from around the world. ICISPE brings Indonesia as the center of discussion as we recognize its unique social-political modality, which is multicultural democratic country as a home for the biggest Muslim community in the world. This unique position both in research and discussion will become the core idea embedded in this conference and will be developed in every year of its continuation. In this conference, participants will be invited to discuss contemporary social-political phenomena in Indonesia, thus able to enhance understanding and propose cutting edge solution to respond such problems.

Initiated as a scientific forum, ICISPE is also can be utilized as a social forum to expand networks between participants, who are representation of academicians and practitioners; the engine of science advancement and community development. In addition, to introduce the participants to the core idea this conference, ICISPE choses Semarang as its venue. We consider Semarang as a city of true living reflection of Indonesian multiculturalism. In this context, ICISPE also can be a social-cultural forum for participants to have more understanding on Indonesia's uniqueness through live experience in its local representation; that is Semarang. Thus, to deliver comprehensive experience on the issue, ICISPE will provide participants with three main agendas. First, general lecturing from experts on conference's theme through plenary session. ## CALL FOR PAPER “LOCALIZING GLOBALIZATION”

Background

In 2016, ICISPE emphasizes “Localizing Globalization” as its theme in the upcoming conference, which emerged from the urgency to connect globalization as a structure and practices from agents in their every daily life within national jurisdiction. Globalization which is triggered by rapid transportation and communication technology development have pushed and fostered economic, social, a political converging process in this contemporary era. As a main power to shape global structure, globalization is inevitable thus the best chance available for all agents is to give responds on this challenges and opportunity by optimizing endowed modalities.

In this context, globalization which brought homogenization is positioned as opposing yet threatening power in contrast to local characters and uniqueness, which have been already long rooted in the society. In other words, the concept of “global society” which is built on globalization as its foundation is negated with the concept of “local wisdom” as actualization of local modalities, so that both concepts are contradictive and counterproductive. Based on this general perception problem, ICISPE 2016 is aimed to develop understanding on positive mutual relations from both concepts.

Objectives

- To identify and analyze connection between globalization and localization;
- To develop knowledge on how to maintain, strengthen, thus revitalize local wisdom in globalization era;
- To enhance communication and develop network between stakeholders within social and political science and other related discipline.

Topics

Participants (speakers and audiences) of ICISPE 2016 will present and or discuss selected issues derived from “Localizing Globalization” from social and political science. Topics proposed in this conference are but not limited to:

- National integration and social harmonization
- Local autonomy and decentralization
